Description

What is “Oral Storytelling in 8 colours”?

An international project from FEST.

A professional development guide for storytellers.

A model of competences for storytelling.

What will we do in the course?

We will discover “Oral Storytelling in 8 colours” in an experiential way, over a 7-hour programme.

We will explore our personal journeys along the storytelling path – past, present and future.

We will reflect upon our strengths and on the competences that we might like to improve.

How will we do this?

Through drawing, role playing, expressive movement and creative group activities.

There are moments for individual exploration and reflection, as well as moments for sharing in small groups.

Facilitator & Contact

Jennifer Ramsay, professional storyteller since 2004, She is the creator of Story Arte, and specialises in telling stories from around the world, as well as Celtic mythology and folklore.

Jennifer was born in Scotland and tells stories in Spanish and English. She has performed at festivals and in educational and cultural centres in Spain and internationally.

She runs workshops to explore the symbolism of traditional tales in a creative way, drawing on her studies in Gestalt art therapy, ecotherapy and symbolic psychodrama of fairy tales.

She draws on the wisdom of ancestral tales to discuss death and raise awareness of the Earth crisis, and to promote peace in the world.

Her creativity draws inspiration from the dawn of humanity, when stories were told around the ancestral fire to connect with oneself, with the clan and with the universe.

She is a member of AEDA.
